- Event: Joshua Tree Bouldering Camp
- Date: 4-6 March 2005 (two nights camping)
- Description: A lazy man camp for the rock enthusiast! Come enjoy the desert while the daytime temperatures are comfortably warm and the evening just nippy enough to make you feel like you are roughing it. Joshua Tree National Park offers clean air, quiet, and lots of room to roam. Scouts will experience first hand the unique quality of this transition zone between the lower/drier and higher/wetter deserts. No doubt, some will want to come just to enjoy themselves exploring and scrambling over Mother Nature's jumble of huge boulders and challenging rock climbs. (This is a dry camp. Everyone must bring a minimum of 2 gallons water for patrol use, in addition to their personal bottles.)
- We will return to our usual climbing paradise of Indian Cove where technical rock climbing will be the fare of the day. Venture scouts will set up the climbs and run the Hot Zone, advising and assisting younger scouts in their climbing techniques. All climbers must review their knots and climbing procedures.
- Prerequisite: Any scout climbing must have Climbing MB. All Venturers should do the February 12-13 rock climb.
- Meet At: Friday, 5:30p @ Sports Authority. Travel in uniform. Eat dinner before leaving.
- Return: Sunday Afternoon
- Cost: $31 + personal scout expenses (Note that this is a two night trek in a National Park which involves a 360 milereturn drive; all our expenses increase correspondingly. It's all worth it, however!)
- Instructions: Scouts should bring, in addition to their campsite gear and two gallons of campwater, a day pack and containers to hold a minimum of 2 quarts of water.
- Bring this form, signed, along with the fee to the Feb 14 or 28 troop meetings.
- Leaders: Bob Mihalik 942-9350 Emergencies: Pat Mihalik
